15 minutes a day of reading = 1 million+ words a year.

According to research, reading fiction can reduce stress levels up to 68%. It's actually more effective than listening to music, sipping tea or taking a walk.

Children who read 20 words per day will be in the bottom 2% of standardized tests.

Children who read 3,000 words per day will be in the top 2% of standardized tests.

Reasons to read more

Reading for pleasure is a success story in life. Reading after school has shown that the pleasure we get from it is a success story in life. If you need you will find it.

Reading is vital for developing the imagination. It allows us to travel to other worlds, cultures and times through other eyes. With a book, the real experience is why books matter, after years. Books are the key to opening up opportunities." -Michelle Magorian
